The Patriot Email Module saves you time and money by automatically sending client and user reports

Email

With Patriot's Email Module, no operator input is required to send customer reports

Producing large quantities of regular printed reports for users is a time consuming task for monitoring station staff. With Patriot's Email Module, reports can be automatically emailed to your users at any interval required.

The Patriot Email Module can combine reports from a number of customer sites. Property managers then receive all relevant data as one email attachment.

Automated reports can be emailed to individuals or groups of recipients. Configuration is quick and simple.

A range of essential reports can be sent to Patriot users at different intervals (e.g. daily, weekly, monthly).

Alternatively, predefined reports can be emailed by Patriot with one mouse click.

No specialised equipment is required to add the Email Module to your Patriot system. Your internet service provider's mail server may be used or Patriot can integrate to your own in-house mail server.

The Patriot Email Module works in the background saving your operators time and reducing monitoring station operational costs

Monitoring station clients, dealers and installers will appreciate receiving essential reports in paper-saving PDF format. Data searches and analysis are simplified. All or parts of reports can be printed as required.

Automatic notifications

The Email Module can automatically notify clients, response teams or maintenance staff when selected alarm events are received.

Patriot can automatically send an email notification for any event to one or more email addresses. No operator intervention is necessary.

The Patriot Email Module works in the background saving your operators time and reducing monitoring station operational costs.

All email events are recorded in the Patriot Database for analysis as required.

Email Receiver Task

With the additional Email Alarm Receiver task, signals can be received from selected client equipment via email.

This reduces communication costs for the customer and enables the monitoring station to offer extended service options.
